

Name: The Vision of Tundale

Author: Bosch, Hieronymus

Year: late 1400s

Technique: oil on panel 65,50 cm x 85 cm

Description: This homage to the Medieval master of illusions depicted a representation of the Irish knight Tundale during his trip through heaven and hell guided by an angel. In the painting, the knight and the angel are in the upper left corner, observing the souls of the damned tormented because of the sins they committed on Earth.

Letter to the editor

Pulmonary adiaspiromycosis - yet a challenging condition?

Vitorino Modesto dos Santos

9-10

Topic Review

Therapeutic options for cesarean scar defect

Angie Carolina Carreño-Martínez

Janer Sepúlveda-Agudelo

11-7

Topic Review

Measurement of blood oxygen saturation in chronic obstructive pulmonary disease.

Diana Jimena Cano Rosales

Carlos A. Torres-Duque

19-25

Topic Review

Impact of genital hair removal on female skin microenvironment: Barrier disruption and risk of infection, a literature review

Daniel Giovanni Romero-Gamboa

Luis Alfonso Díaz-Martínez

Marta Lucía Díaz-Galvis

Diana Paola González Blanco

27-33

Topic Review

Neonatal sepsis: physiopathology and biomarkers

José S. Cortés

Laura X. Fernández Cruz

Emilce Beltrán Zúñiga

Carlos F. Narváez

Carlos Eduardo Fonseca-Becerra

35-47

Case Presentation

Luxation of the temporomandibular joint: about a case report and its differential diagnosis

Diego Fernando Alarcón-Ariza

Laura Cristina Zambrano-Jerez

Cristian David Sosa-Vesga

Laura Marcela Pardo-Parra

49-54

Instructions to authors

63-69