

Statement of ethics and good practices

The Universidad Industrial de Santander. Salud journal abide by the code of ethics regulations for every publication (Research in humans using the declaration of Helsinki, available in: <http://wma.net/es/30publications/10policies/b3/> and own country's policies realization.

Only original and unpublished articles in the area of health and related sciences in either Spanish or English are to be submitted, evaluated and published if approved.

Confidentiality

All articles submitted to the journal will be sent to peer reviewers, with the identity of the authors unknown. The information provided by the authors of the manuscripts submitted for publication, remains confidential by all staff in charge of editorial process (editor, editorial and scientific board members, professional assistants and committee support), or not to be used for purposes other than required in the editorial process, another people or institutions.

Disclosure and conflicts of interest

The authors must complete letter for the transfer of copyrights and declaration of conflict of interest or proof of originality (format established by the journal Universidad Industrial de Santander. Salud) that the author agrees to submit their article for evaluation and that the article is original, unpublished and is not currently being considered or has been subjected for evaluation and / or accepted in another journal. Any possible conflict of interest (academic, commercial, financial, personal or political), that can influence improperly at any time of the process of publication should be advised.

Authors, editorial staff and evaluators should report any conflict of interest that is present in both the production of the manuscript and in its subsequent evaluation and publication process.

Editorial decisions

Editorial decisions regarding the manuscripts submitted will be taken by the editor and the Editorial Board of the Universidad Industrial de Santander.Salud journal.

Contributions to editorial decisions

Assessments made by academic peers will be taken into account in editorial process. After the assessment completion the authors will be contacted about the relevant decisions made in each case.

Standards of objectivity

All evaluations are conducted in an objective manner, without arguments and avoiding conflicts of interest.

References recognition

Peer reviewers should identify relevant papers dealing with the subject content of article that are already published and not been cited by the authors., identify these comments and followed by the respective reference. Evaluators are requested to report to the editor any cases of similarity between the paper submitted and other previously papers published.

All the manuscripts submitted for publication in Universidad Industrial de Santander.Salud journal, will be analyzed by a specialized program turnitin® that will make comparisons with the worldwide text database for the purposes of seeking to identify incorrect citations or possible plagiarism.

Originality and plagiarism

Authors should guarantee that their manuscript is original and is not currently already submitted for editorial processing for the publication in another journal and has not been published previously. The author should also guarantee that their manuscript does not infringe any copyright or other proprietary rights of any person or entity, does no contain false, defamatory, obscene or fraudulent declarations, or any other statement that could be illegal in any way.

If part of the content of the work has been presented or published in other media, authors should recognize and cite the sources and academic credits.

The Universidad Industrial de Santander. Salud journal adheres to the guidelines of Committee on Publication Ethics (COPE) <http://publicationethics.org/> for the detection and management of plagiarism in papers received. It is understood that authors who submit manuscripts to the journal, authorize the manuscript to be analyzed by specialized programs.

Errors in published articles

Authors should carefully review the final version of the article, prior to publication in the journal, reporting any errors that need to be corrected.

After the manuscript is published and in case any errors or significant inaccuracies are found, authors should promptly notify the editor and the editorial committee. Your further cooperation with the Universidad Industrial de Santander. Salud journal would be required to produce either an errata, appendix, notice, correction, or in cases where deemed necessary to remove the writing of the issue published.